Are there any other charities that you think the school should be supporting, or are there any comments that you want to make about the school's role in raising funds for charities?

The school should concentrate on one charity event rather than diluting its effort amongst multiple charities 12/4/2016 4:30 PM	CRY (Cardiac Risk in the Young) 11/30/2016 6:00 PM
No 12/2/2016 10:50 AM	As it's impossible to support all of the above why not draw a charity out of a hat to support when organising an event 11/30/2016 5:26 PM
I personally believe raising funds for children's charities should be priority. 12/1/2016 11:01 PM	I think any charity the school supports should be able to involve the children of the school being able to do something themselves as part of fundraising. Also it would be nice to support a local charity too, perhaps support one national charity and one local charity - perhaps could be voted for by the children every year as say the schools "charity of the year" 11/30/2016 5:21 PM
The school should focus on fund raising for items needed for school 12/1/2016 6:41 PM	Cancer reasearch 11/30/2016 5:01 PM
I would favour children based charities, or ones which the children can relate to. I like the Macmillan coffee morning because it is a good opportunity to invite community members into school but it could be organised by other members of the village. The Salvation Army hostel is a good recipient for the harvest collection so I think that should be retained. the Christmas shoe box is one which parents can do elsewhere though I do think it should be retained as an optional extra. 12/1/2016 9:08 AM	Could we do joint fundraising with Leven WI or other groups for instance for the MacMillan Coffee Morning 11/30/2016 4:57 PM
I don't mind giving money if the children have a dub day and it's about giving to other children. Asking for £1 each term for a non-uniform day etc is fine by us 12/1/2016 7:06 AM	I saw a charity that asked that children left their school shoes at the end of the summer term on the tables as they left school. These went over seas to help children who had no shoes. This would be a way of supporting a charity without it costing more money as most children start the new school year with new shoes. 11/30/2016 4:40 PM
Comic relief and anything else that doesn't cost parents additional money such as buying jumpers. 11/30/2016 10:05 PM	Refugees 11/30/2016 3:56 PM
I feel that the school works hard to raise awareness to help all charities, but agree that unfortunately it cannot raise funds for all. The school Council could be asked each year to decide which two charities they would like to support? 11/30/2016 9:19 PM	Red nose day. You should stick to raising money for the children in the school whilst still encouraging them to support charities out of school. 11/30/2016 3:37 PM
Where possible I think as many charities should be supported as we can! But I do feel that in some cases the children aren't given enough info about why they are raising funds. The love having non-uniform/dress up days, but sometimes seem oblivious as to why. I think a greater understanding of those less fortunate is very important 11/30/2016 9:08 PM	I think it's fantastic that the school supports charities. Getting the children involved in a fun way is great for their awareness. Just give us as much notice as possible please! 11/30/2016 3:29 PM

Make a wish 11/30/2016 6:44 PM	Perhaps instead of a second one of the above. A day to raise money for the school it's self. 11/30/2016 3:08 PM
Should be fun for the children 11/30/2016 6:20 PM	Marie curie 11/30/2016 3:02 PM
